

Church Voter Guide Survey

Candidate: Jane Northrup Glenn for Colorado Springs City Council At-Large

As a candidate in the Colorado Springs nonpartisan municipal election, you are not officially associated with any specific political party. How would you describe your political leanings (socially, fiscally, etc.) and why do you define yourself in this way?

In 2016 I asked the Lord how to vote. He answered, "The parties are not Mine. Do not vote for either." My Christian friends thought I needed intervention. So, I asked again. "Am I supposed to vote for Donald Trump?" Jesus replied, "No." I immediately unaffiliated from the Republican party and wrote in a cartoon character for President. My political philosophy is based on free will for people to make decisions for themselves, some of which have consequences that the Lord should deal with, not the government. I am extremely fiscally conservative. I believe in the Bible and the Constitution. God is the source of truth and morality. God protects us. God provides. I do not trust the government.

What experience (personal, professional, other) would you bring to your role as a Colorado Springs City Councilmember that will benefit our city? What is your vision for the city, and what do you hope to accomplish during your first year in office?

I am the author of two prophetic books, "God Punched Back" and "God's Public Option", both of which lay out the why and how God will protect us through what is coming. Jesus will lead people to Colorado Springs as the country devolves so we need to prepare for them. I am an obedient leader with an ability to take in lots of information and understand how things are connected including between seemingly unrelated things. This wiring helps me to catch discrepancies and even offer solutions that others may not have seen. In addition to that I can see things from multiple perspectives and explain an issue in different ways to get the opposing stakeholders to the same destination.

Many Americans believe that the government at every level is not securing their Creator-given rights, but rather encroaching on them. Established freedoms, including that of speech, peaceable assembly, exercise of religion, medical autonomy, and commerce are often negatively impacted by state and federal regulations, and were greatly infringed upon by COVID mandates. How will you protect the residents of Colorado Springs from current and future unconstitutional government overreach?

We ain't seen nothing yet. We need to be concerned with state and federal grants and subsidies. This money is meant to usher in the U.N. 2030 Agenda goals to every level of government. These global goals include plans for universal environmental, health and equity regulations. Those are the regulations we need to pay attention to. The Lord told me that we need to stop the flow of that money to the city to strengthen Home Rule Authority. In addition, we need to establish what I describe as a parallel marketplace and governing system, like the Amish on steroids, to circumvent the current and future government overreach. I have been given the divine blueprint to do this.

Colorado Springs' crime rates are rising, while Police Department recruitment is down. What will you do to ensure citizens are protected from crime, including improving recruitment, morale, and response time within the CSPD?

We must reestablish respect for police officers to successfully recruit. Colorado passed a law removing qualified immunity from police officers, effectively destroying the morale of every officer in the state. To send a message to the legislators, the City needs to add a budget line item covering personal liability insurance for every officer. We need a citywide campaign reminding people to cooperate with officers while they're doing their job so we can better identify officers that need to be removed from duty for abusive tactics. We need to be creative about getting repeat offenders off the street by researching old law still on the books.

City Councilmembers also serve as the Board for Colorado Springs Utilities. What is your plan to (1) shield residents and businesses from accelerated rate hikes due to an expedited shift to renewable energy resources, and (2) address the future water needs of Colorado Springs as our city continues to grow in population and annex more land?

This is a complex issue that I do not understand. I do know that we are in a danger zone with our resources. From a practical perspective, I will follow the lead of councilmembers who know how to address this and are not lackeys for the developers. Candidates that I know fall into this category are Jaymen Johnson, Jay Inman, and Scott Hiller in District 3. We also need to stop annexations until we have accurate data on the state of our current resources and options. From a spiritual perspective, CSU and City Council need to make sure we're not stealing water from other areas under the guise of "win-win" contracts because we need the favor of the Lord.

As a City Councilmember, how will you ensure the protection of the most vulnerable in our city, including the lives of the unborn, the trafficked, and the elderly?

The government has proven to be absolutely useless in these areas (and many others). So, my question to you is how will the church ensure this? For starters, every Christian in this city needs to stop willfully sinning. Then, confess those sins and repent so your prayers are powerful and effective. I'm certain you will hear from Jesus Christ about your personal role in protecting the vulnerable. The Gospel, not the government, will radically protect the lives of the unborn, the trafficked and the elderly.

What specifically should City Council do to bring more businesses/jobs to Colorado Springs?

City Council should not be offering dowries to bring businesses to Colorado Springs. Businesses should establish themselves here because they truly love the city. The city is the shot caller, not the businesses. As a matter of fact, we should be looking at ways to make it more difficult for businesses that engage in global ESG practices to take root here. The truth is that more people want to work for themselves and we need to make it easier for them to do so. I envision a city filled with entrepreneurs and lots of mobile businesses: mobile tattoo shops, nail salons, and every service and product available. Whatever needs to be done at the local level to make this happen, needs to be done.

As more and more people move to Colorado Springs, what can be done to provide affordable housing while also retaining our city's unique character and environment that have made it such a popular place in the United States to live?

The only way to organically make a city affordable is to make it undesirable. However, because the Lord has declared Colorado Springs a refugee city for the end times, that makes us desirable. So, how do we deal with this? We need to understand that we have entered a new era and home ownership will be for physical protection and no longer for passing down generational wealth. Jesus wants His people housed and He has shown me how to establish a private membership, covenant community that will legally circumvent tenant/landlord laws, rent control, and other anti-freedom regulation while meeting the needs of everyone. God is good and we should be looking to Him for direction, not the government.

How can the City address the increase in the homeless/vagrant population in our city in ways that best serve all Colorado Springs residents?

Jesus intimately knows every homeless person. Sixteen months ago, the Lord told me to say something very specific to an older homeless man and his dog. When I spoke the words that made no sense to me, he cried. Today, this man has permanent housing and has been baptized. Throughout this journey, the Lord showed me the flaws in the government system and how to correct them using the church. I am prepared to show Christ followers how to help a portion of the homeless population immediately and with no help from the government. It requires a paradigm shift and a will to do the Father's work.

What are your views pertaining to Colorado Springs' ban on recreational Marijuana sales within city limits? Also, with the recent decriminalization of Psilocybin-containing mushrooms and other psychedelic drugs in Colorado, and the Opioid/Fentanyl crisis, what do you believe should be done to protect our city and its residents, and especially our youth, from the negative physical, mental, emotional, social, and economic impacts of Schedule I and II drug use and abuse?

An argument can be made that alcohol has destroyed more lives than most other drugs, especially marijuana. An argument can be made that the use of drugs, like alcohol, should not be illegal because we have laws for crimes that are committed under the influence of those. I see the other side of the debate, too. The supernatural danger with marijuana and psychedelics, which is different from alcohol, is a connection to the spirit realm that confuses people about who the one true God is. That said, natural laws are not most effective for spiritual problems because God and Satan and angels and demons don't have to obey them. Get Jesus back into your home, stop sinning and pray.

Colorado Springs has a large, diverse, and well-established religious community, consisting predominantly of those practicing some form of Christianity, and is home to hundreds of local churches and international parachurch ministries. What is your current engagement with the local faith community, and how do you plan to interact with and represent us in your role on City Council?

I met with three churches and two faith groups to share the vision the Lord gave me for the church to take care of people rather than the government. One representative said he believed that the plan was divine, and intriguing. None showed any interest in participating. For this reason, pastors and the organized church will soon become irrelevant while individual Christ followers will lead others to eternal salvation. The God that I serve does not share a stage with other gods and "some form of Christianity" may not be Christianity at all. So, if elected, I will speak the name of Jesus Christ only, but I will support laws that give everyone the same freedom to worship.
